SGA President's Message

Legislators supported each other, not only on the ropes course, but in everything else during the school year.

Eric Loree always went the extra step, as shown here as he tries to recover a lost frisbee during the retreat.

The legislators were always there to make sure their president stayed balanced and on her feet.

Tom Hoskinson, one of the more "colorful" legislators, was always there to provide plenty of laughs.

SGA secretary, Evelyn, and bookkeeper, Salikha, taking a break from work to catch a smoke.

When SGA Justice Carrie Jepson spoke, everyone listened. At the retreat, she and many others proved themselves to be efficient leaders with ideas that would take the SGA very far in the following months.

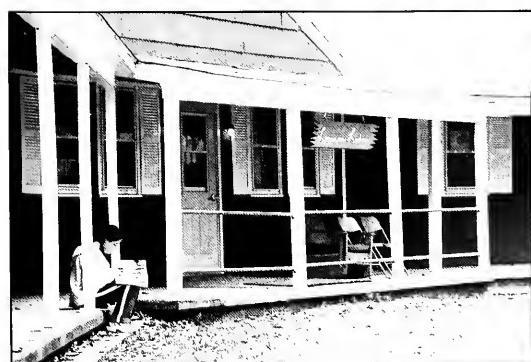

Kindlyne helps everyone get started across the river.

Legislator Jusna learned that even leaders can be dealt a bad hand, but can make the best of it.

Director of Programming, Julie Fleming, during one of her meetings with the Class One Organizations. If an organization failed to attend the meetings, they had to face the wrath of Julie. Watch out!

Organizational Events

No student can legitimately say that nothing ever happens at Montclair State University, because with over 50 organizations on campus, there is always something going on, whether it's a party, a dance, a dinner, or a show. As proud members of these organizations, students work hard and sometimes long into the evening hours to put on events to help make a better college experience not only for themselves, but more importantly, for the rest of the student body. So if you're saying there's nothing to do on campus, you probably haven't been looking too hard.

Students passing by the Ratt some evenings would often see exotic animals, brought to campus by the Conservation Club.

Class One Concerts brought bands from all genres, especially Ska, to perform, which often brought students and skaters from local high schools.

At the first annual Multicultural Extravaganza people from different cultures came together to show their talents and teach each other about their own culture.

Throughout the year, students would search the campus intently, looking for something exciting to do.

Shweta Shah displays one of her many talents in a presentation put on by the Indian Culture Club.

Students always found something nice to look at while attending the Paul Robeson Banquet, sponsored by OSAU.

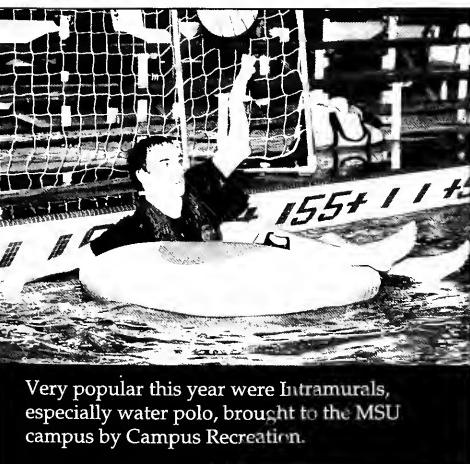

At a rally in October that promoted the elections and urged students to vote, some students used the opportunity to voice their opinions about the ongoing conflicts in the Middle East, and pushed for peace.

These students party wherever they go, including a fundraiser sponsored by ASSIST to fight diabetes.

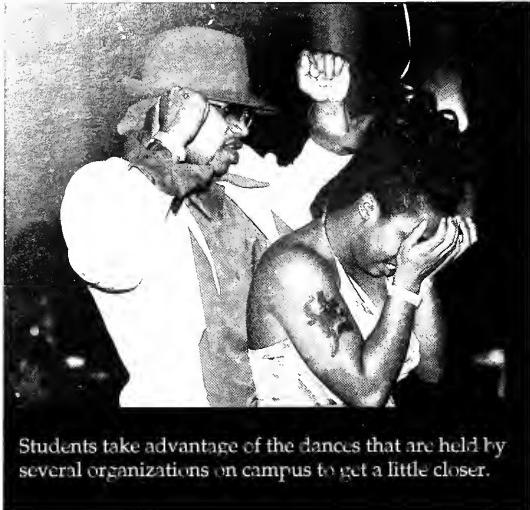

Events held to gain information about all the SGA organizations were always well attended.

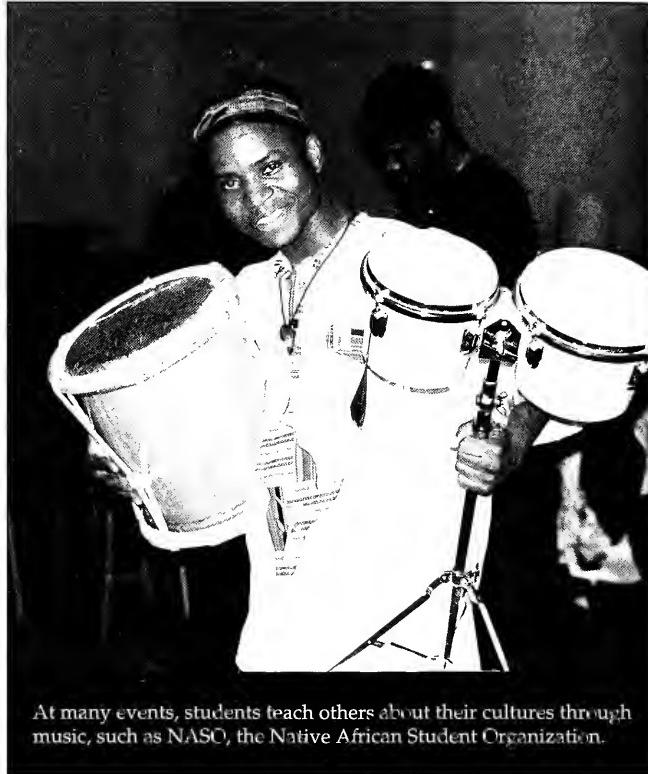

Very popular this year were Intramurals, especially water polo, brought to the MSU campus by Campus Recreation.

More Organizations

Accounting Society
American Humanities Program
Arabic Student Organization
American String Teachers Association
Cricket Club
Gallery 3 1/2

Students take advantage of the dances that are held by several organizations on campus to get a little closer.

At many events, students teach others about their cultures through music, such as NASO, the Native African Student Organization.

Intervarsity Christian Fellowship always puts on great events.

Al and Scar enjoyed the SGA Banquet, which was a time of celebration and recognition.

Even when students found time in their busy schedules to attend events, many brought their work with them.

The SGA helped promote the idea of unity between all organizations.

At this table, students could learn about the Medieval Society, which teaches about the times of knights and jousting.

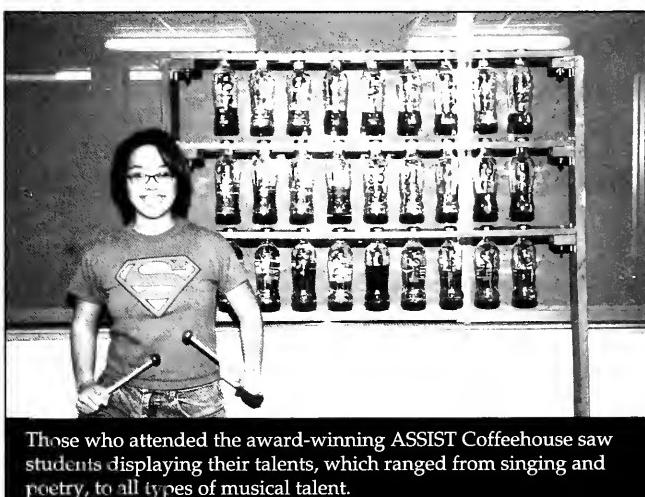

Students shared not only their talents, but also their love, as they came together to enjoy not just the events, but each other's company as well.

Intervarsity President, Bill Kamps, at the Gospel Jam, proving that he too has talent.

SGA Secretary, George Mesias, and his date at the Banquet.

Those who attended the award-winning ASSIST Coffeehouse saw students displaying their talents, which ranged from singing and poetry, to all types of musical talent.

Members of the Japanese Club, having a fun time during one of their many nights out on the town.

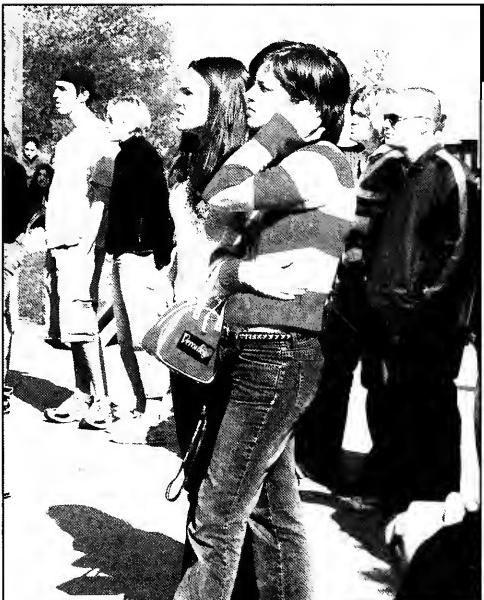

Most students enjoyed the time away from classes and danced well into the night.

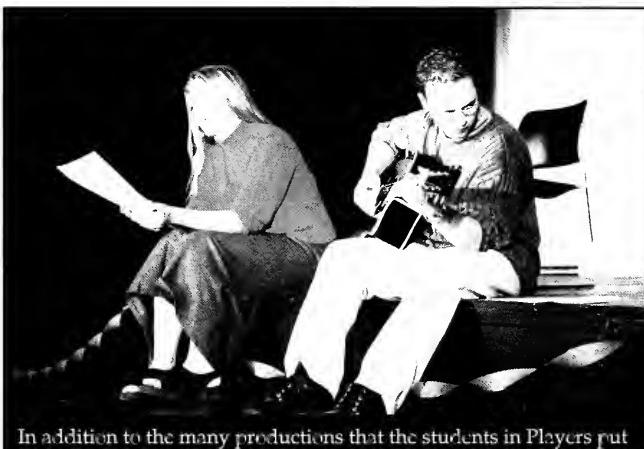

LASO, Latin American Student Organization, one of the larger organizations on campus, always puts on elaborate shows, and holds wild and exciting parties that attract students from all over campus.

This large dragon, although scary, was meant to attract students to one of many clubs.

Students waiting anxiously for the next band to take the stage.

In addition to the many productions that the students in Players put on, there are also the open mic nights that give students the chance to perform and show their talents.

Wellness Services co-sponsors events and provides students with what they need.

Organizations from all backgrounds put on elaborate shows to express their cultures.

ISO, International Students Organization, reaches out to students who have come from all over the world, and helps them with their transitions to America.

Being part of an organization not only gives students an opportunity to take part in events, but also helps create new friendships.

Allyn, Kristin, Liz, and Scarlett taking advantage of the nice weather.

Members of the SGA enjoying a political fundraiser, puffing stogies.

Clothes play an important role in defining a culture, as shown by Karyn during this event.

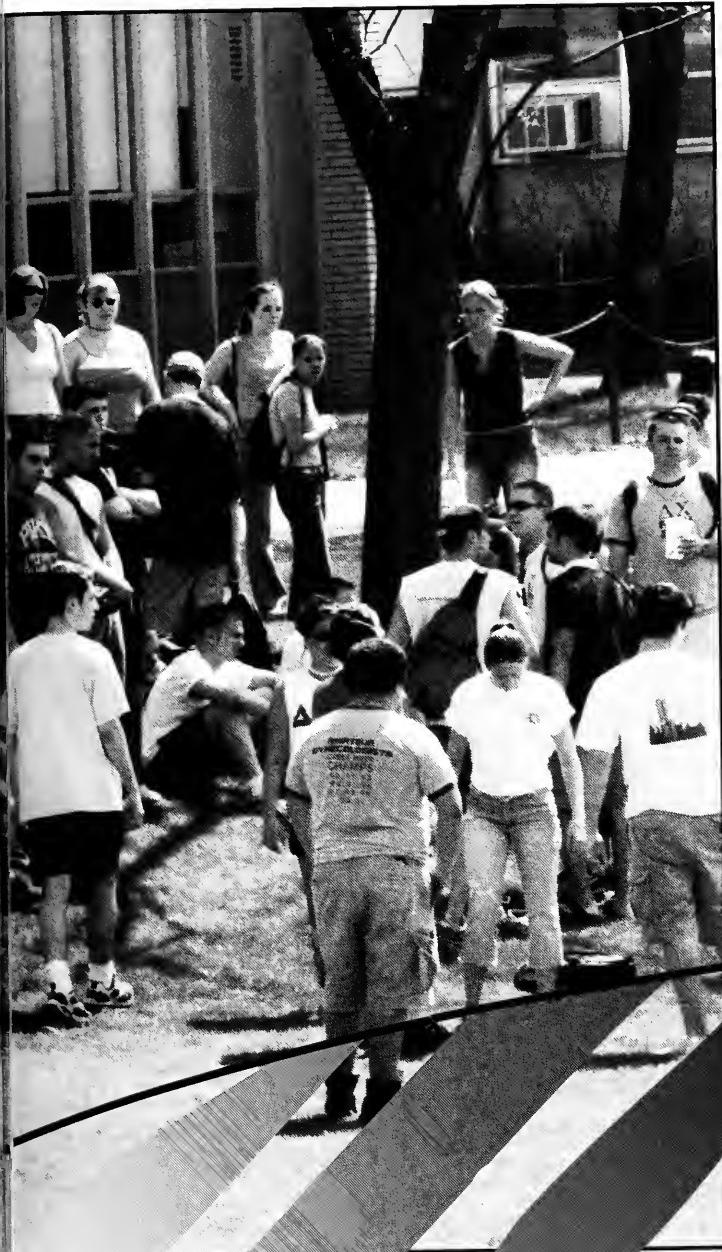

This musician prepares himself right before putting on a spectacular show, care of Class One Concerts.

Members of Class One Concerts and WMSC are always at the concerts making sure everything runs smoothly.

Alyson's Perspective On MSU

Red Hawk Diner: I enjoyed the many meals with my family and friends. It was also fun to be part of the Wall of Fame during the Spring '02 semester.

On Weekends: Spend time with my boyfriend, James, and my sister, Alexandra, at Clifton Commons, Willowbrook Mall, Garden State Plaza, Charlie Brown's Steakhouse, LBI and NYC.

Best Courses: Applied Communication, CMPT 183, Fractals and Infinity, Web Page Design, Musical Theatre, Computer Graphics, and Honors Science.

Worst Courses: I'm proud to say I made it through Discrete Mathematics and Calculus.

Skip Classes: Hardly ever.

Add What Course: I always wished there was a course in Impressionist Art.

Bring What Music Act to MSU: Broadway stars from "Jane Eyre", "Aida", "Cabaret", "Rent", "The Lion King", and "Mamma Mia!"

Organizations Involved In: The Montclarion, Lambda Pi Eta.

Longest Wait for the Shuttle: It's easier to walk.

Change ONE Thing at MSU: Bring a Ph.D. program in Visual Communication.

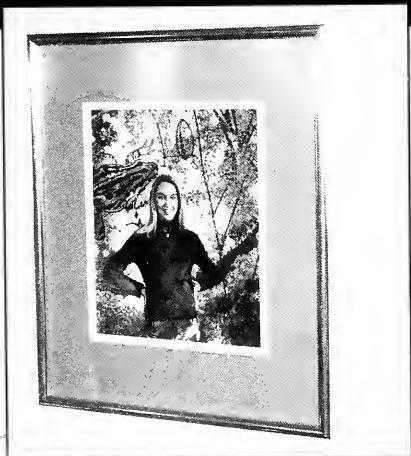

Name: Alyson Thelin

Year: Senior

Major: Speech Communication

"I will never forget: my Freshman Orientation group - all the formal dances and award ceremonies - the Internet consulting - the guidance and opportunities from so many people in the MSU campus community - and the fun and crazy times in the basement of the Student Center Annex!"

Name: Adrienne L.
Salimbene
Year: Sophomore
Major: Latin Education

"I like the school and most people are very friendly but ever so often you get those jackasses who just ruin your day."

Red Hawk Diner: It's a big publicity stunt to draw in new students - completely unnecessary!

On Weekends: Work, visit my family, sleep.

Fun Off Campus: Six Brother's Diner

Best Courses: Religions of the World, Latin

Worst Courses: Intro to Film; it was a three hour naptime each week that I got credit for.
Difficulty of Classes: Depends on the professor. Some classes give ridiculous amounts of work but most are not too bad.

Skip Classes: If I can help it, no more than once.

Add What Course: More classical languages (i.e., Sanskrit, Ancient Hebrew/Chinese)

Bring What Music Act to MSU: Nine Inch Nails; Trent Reznor is God!!

Organizations Involved In: A.S.S.I.S.T., SGA, WMSC, Conservation Club, Classics Club.
Visit NYC: Once in a blue moon.

Longest Wait for the Shuttle: Well over an hour, in the snow, late at night and early in the morning.

Say one thing to President Cole: I plead the 5th on this one.

Change ONE Thing at MSU: Lower book store prices and cigarette sales on campus.

Adrienne's Perspective On MSU

Jenn's Perspective On MOSU

Red Hawk Diner: As a resident, the location is convenient. But if I can't swipe, I'll still be around dining at Six Brothers.

On Weekends: Sleep and catch up on my work because I partied or was at the Montclarion all week.

Places For Fun Off Campus: MSU and NJIT fraternity houses, diners, the city and the shore.

Best Courses: All classes in my Graphic Design concentration, and Human Sexuality of course.

Worst Courses: Computer Science courses bring new meaning to the words "independent study."

Difficulty of the Courses: Depends on the department. In my major they've been challenging but not impossible.

Skip Classes: Never

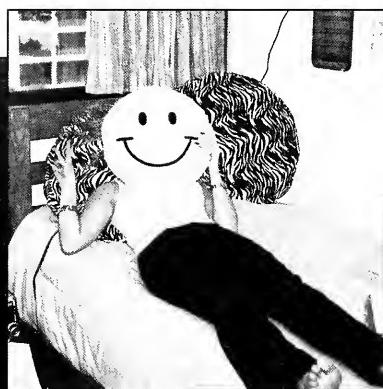

Add What Course: Gaelic

Bring What Music Act to MSU: U2

Organizations Involved In: Delta Xi Delta, Montclarion

Longest Wait For the Shuttle: 45 mins.

Change ONE Thing at MSU: Residents could park near their homes again.

Name: Jenn Winski

Year: Senior

Major: Fine Arts

"Whoever said high school is the best four years of your life obviously never went to college. I cherish my years as an editor of The Montclarion and a sister of Delta Xi Delta. College is truly whatever you make of it, and I made it the best time of my life."

Name: Kate Marlys

Year: Senior

Major: Marketing

"This definitely was the perfect school for me! I met some of the most amazing people here and I will truly miss Montclair State University. I wish the graduating seniors the best of luck."

Red Hawk Diner: I'm all for it!

On Weekends: Go out to Hoboken
Places For Fun Off Campus: Local bars

Best Courses: Advertising, Consumer Behavior

Worst Courses: Accounting

Difficulty of the Courses: Some are hard and some are easy.

Skip Classes: Never. My roommates make fun of me because I never miss class.

Bring What Music Act to MSU:

Dave Matthews Band

Organizations Involved In: Class One Concerts (President), CLUB, SGA, Marketing Association

Visit NYC: Not so much this year as much as in the past.

On President Cole: I was invited to her house for dinner because I am a president of a Class One organization. She really impressed me and I think she is great.

Longest Wait For the Shuttle: Oh God! At least 25 minutes!

Kate's Perspective On MOSU

Juanita's Perspective On MSU

Red Hawk Diner: I have not been there yet.

On Weekends: REST!

Fun Off Campus: Go to the movies, out to dinner, or clubs with friends.

Best Courses: Black Writers, and Women's Worlds

Worst Courses: Contemporary Applied Math, General Oceanography.

Difficulty of Classes: Some courses are hard, but you have to apply what you have learned in order to understand the course. Sometimes it helps to get help from the teacher or from Tutorial Services.

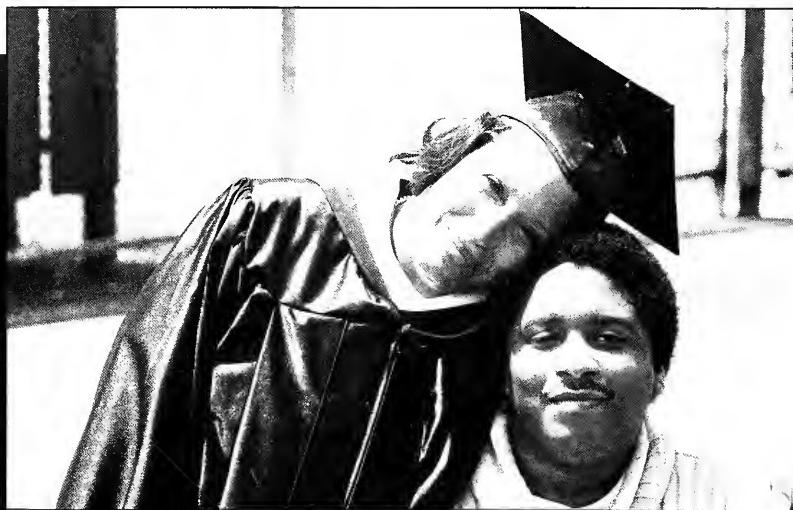

Skip Classics: Never.

Add What Course: Something dealing with Music Business.

Bring What Music Act to MSU: A jazz group.

Visit NYC: As often as time will allow.

To President Cole: It's been a wonderful experience for me at MSU.

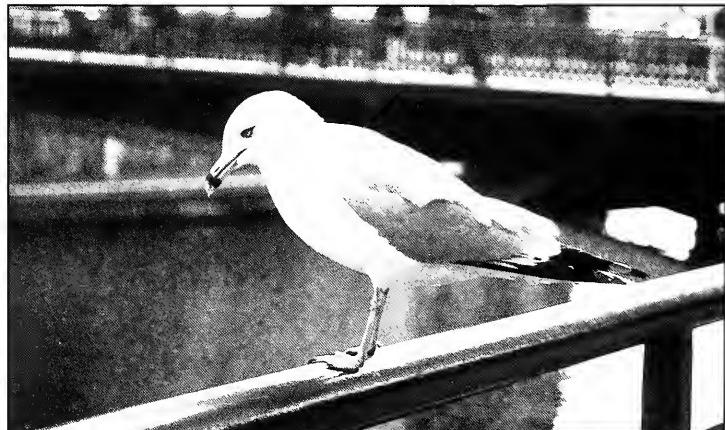

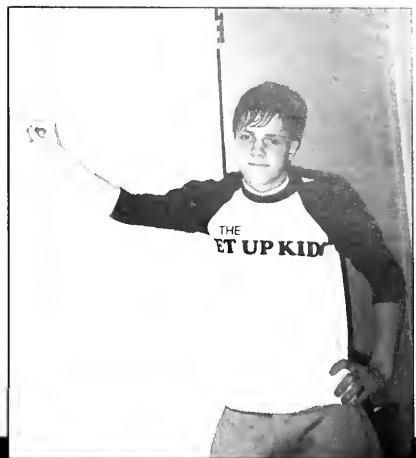

Name: Juanita Gaskin

Year: Senior

Major: English

"My experience at MSU has been hard but enjoyable. It has been one of my most rewarding experiences - to finish my college education."

Name: Kevin Dunphy

Year: Freshman

Major: Undeclared

"So far, MSU has been really fun. I met a lot of cool people and have had a great time."

Red Hawk Diner: It's ok. It's a typical diner. It should be "swipeable" though, for maximum use.

On Weekends: Party hardy, do my homework, save the whales, and look forward to Monday.

Places For Fun Off Campus: NYC, Delaware. I have many adventures in New Jersey; wherever my car takes me.

Best Courses: The Stars Program, especially Fundamentals of Speech, and I was the only male in Dance Appreciation (see smile on my face)

Worst Courses: Art in Non-Western Societies, Italian, Contemporary Applied Math, Intro to Computer Applications.

Difficulty of the Courses: It all depends on the professor, and the amount of ass-kissing I do.

Add What Course: College Partying (like in the movies).

Organizations involved in: WMSC, Class One Concerts, Indoor Soccer.

To President Cole: Could I have a scholarship?

Longest wait for the shuttle: Too long, in the rain.

Kevin's Perspective On MSU

Andrew's Perspective On MSU

Red Hawk Diner: Other universities have not had a diner available on campus. I was there once and the food wasn't bad. Most people still prefer Six Brothers.

On Weekends: I ended up with a Saturday morning class because I signed up late. Usually on weekends you can hear a pin drop on campus. Students complain there's nothing to do, but they don't realize that they are the only ones who can change it.

Places For Fun Off Campus: Six Brother's Diner, my brother's apartment, NYC, and observing at my old grade school kindergarten class.

Best Courses: Educational Psychology

Skip Classes: Not yet.

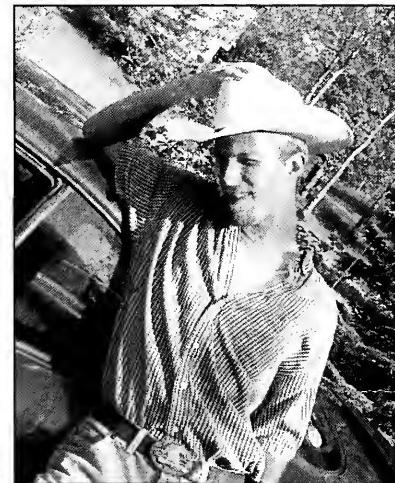

Add What Courses: Children's Theatre, Puppetry

Bring What Music Act to MSU: Ladysmith Black Mambazo

Organizations Involved In: A Capella

Longest wait for the shuttle: Never bothered to wait; I need the exercise.

Change ONE thing at MSU: I wish that more students would spend more time getting involved on campus, especially on the weekends.

Name: Andrew Gruswitz

Year: Freshman

Major: Elementary Ed.

"Get involved!

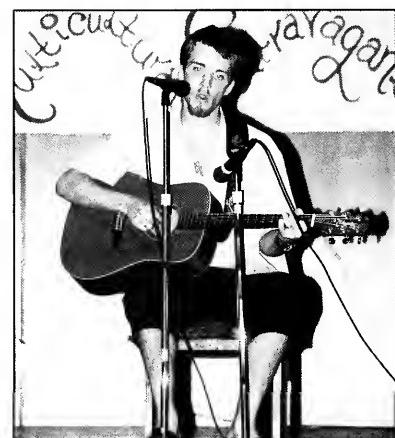

Do your homework!

Help your community!

Get your money's worth out of MSU!

Rock it!"

Name: Cindy Scatuccio

Year: Junior

Major: Business

"No matter how much I hate MSU, I would not want to be anywhere else."

Red Hawk Diner: I don't like it. It costs too much money and the food is no good.

On Weekends: Go home or work on campus.

Places For Fun Off Campus: Doc's and frat houses.

Best Courses: Mythology

Worst Courses: Math 114 and U.S.

History, although it may have been the professor.

Difficulty of the Courses: I feel that many of the courses are too easy.

Skip Class: 2-3 times a week.

Bring What Music Act to MSU: Gor Goo Dolls

Organizations involved in: Phi Sigma Sigma.

To President Col: I wish you were more active with the students and more aware of their needs.

Longest wait for the shuttle: An hour.

Change ONE thing about MSU: The food.

Homecoming not only brings back the alumni who have long ago walked away from here, but also brings together the students who still remain. With classes just beginning to get difficult, the Homecoming events, made possible by CLUB, give the students a chance to get down and dirty, or clean, as is the case with the traditional foam party. Getting dirty is left to the fighting Red Hawks, who feel that stomping on Kean's football team is also a tradition worth upholding. From the competition for King and Queen to the late night hours spent building floats, the Organizations and Greeks put a lot of time and energy into the Homecoming festivities. Regardless of who wins, Homecoming proves to be a time of fun with friends, family, and alumni.

float Building

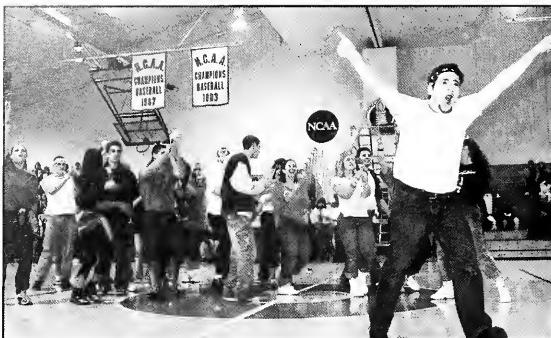

"Homecoming and float-building are some of the few times a year that I can always count on seeing old friends. If it weren't for these people that made my college years so memorable, I might not otherwise attend the parade."

-- Aldo Castonon, Theta Xi, Class of 2000

Homecoming Parade

And the winner is... Intervarsity Christian Fellowship

"Not everyone in the organizations may have been aware of the rules...Need to work on communication between CLUB and organizations."

-- Julie Fleming, CLUB Homecoming Director, in reference to the Theta Xi and Pi Kappa Alpha fight

"I wish there was a way to turn back the clock."

-- Greg Brown, Evening and Weekend Coordinator

"This year it seemed to be more diverse as far as organizations... it was not an entirely Greek event, whereas in the past it has been mostly Greek with a few other organizations."

-- Sarah Liloia, Sigma Delta Phi, 1999

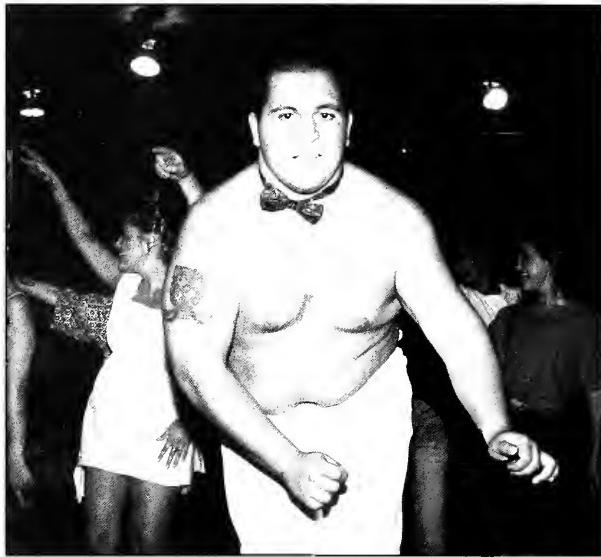

"Homecoming is a great Montclair tradition... I still look forward to seeing it every year."

-- Jessica Capeline, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Class of 2002

"On a separate note, we had just witnessed a terrible event in the history of our country, and this year's Homecoming provided some normalcy."

-- Victor Cirilo, Theta Xi, Class of 1999

With finals just around the corner, many students view Winterball as an opportunity to let loose before cracking down and studying hard. Dressed in their finest, MSU students are brought in by the busloads to tear up the dance floor, as well as the bar. The cold outside is no match for the warm smiles and laughs that are shared between friends. With so much going on, and with an open bar, usually many find it hard to make this a night to remember, so cameras are provided to help the students capture their memories.

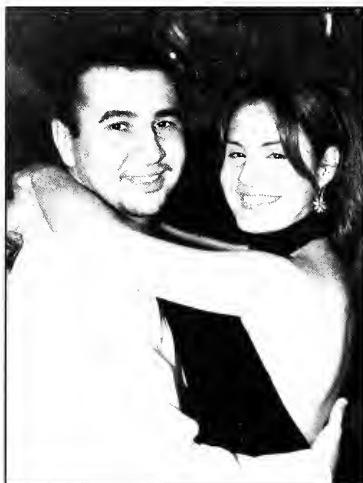

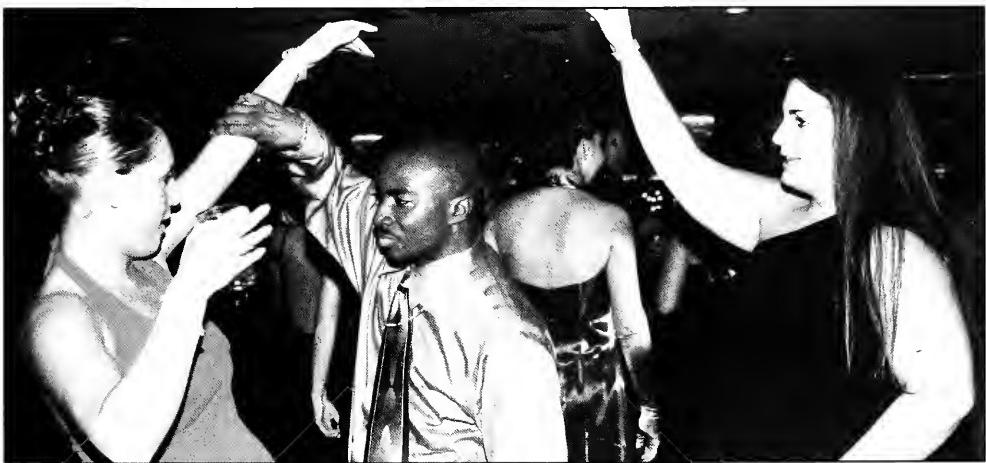

While some students attend Winterball without a date, choosing to go with friends instead, many couples take advantage of the formal event to spend time together and romance each other on the dance floor.

Spring is in the air, and students are itching to get out of their dorms after a long, cold winter. Every year for one week, CLUB fills the campus with activities, games, and events to convince students to put down their books, and come outside for awhile. From games and mountain climbing in the quad, to diving through foam at the foam party, there is always an excuse for an MSU student to procrastinate during Spring Week. This year, several Blanton dorm rooms were overtaken by different groups on campus, as well as a few administrators, in order to put on MSU's version of Hollywood Squares. Getting active on campus is what makes college enjoyable, and Spring Week provides the MSU community with many opportunities to have a good time.

*Dancing

Senior Bash is a bittersweet time for many students, especially the graduating seniors who find themselves on the dance floor surrounded by their closest college friends for what may be the last time. Although sad, Senior Bash is the last hoorah before having to face the real world outside of college, so many students take full advantage of it. With a glass in one hand and a tissue in the other, MSU students share one last drink and one last cry with friends before they take their walk down the aisle into uncertainty. However, on this night, all that matters are the friendships that have been formed and the time that's been shared together; the memories made, and the moments that will never be forgotten.

Graduation 2002

Friday, May 24, 2002... Continental Airlines Arena... graduates, friends, and family gather to celebrate the commencement of the 2,580 members of the 2002 graduating class...

as the music starts, we step onto the arena floor...we eagerly scan the filled stands for our loved ones whose faces are beaming with pride...suddenly we are filled with emotion...for so long we have waited for this moment - all our classes are completed, all our tests are taken, all we need is that diploma in our hand - and now, with the moment here, we are suddenly and sadly recalling our past years here...the times we spent with our friends, late night talks, outings, parties, and we realize how much our lives are about to change...but we can't go back...we can only go forward and carry with us the memories of our years here, the times with our friends, and the lessons we have learned, not only from our classes, but about life.....

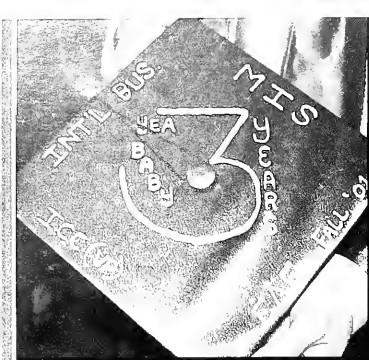

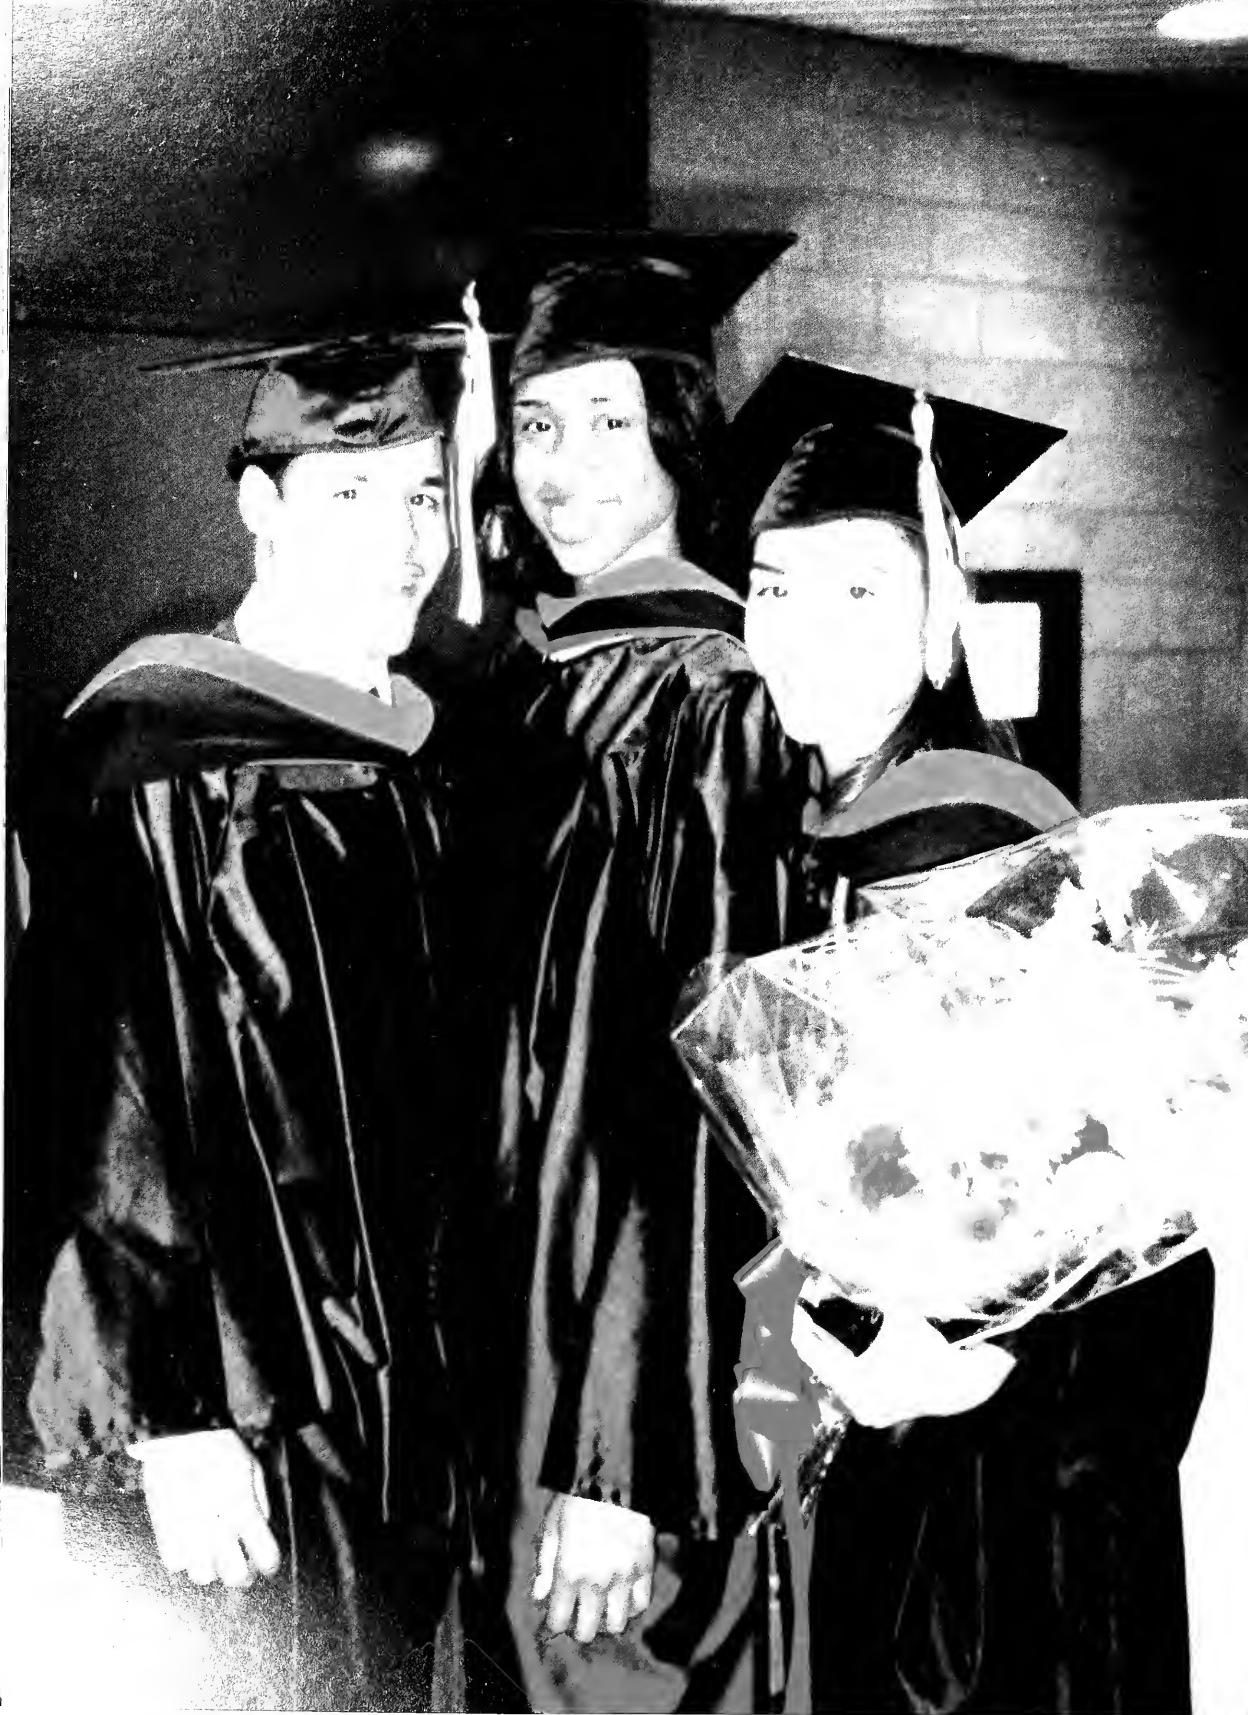

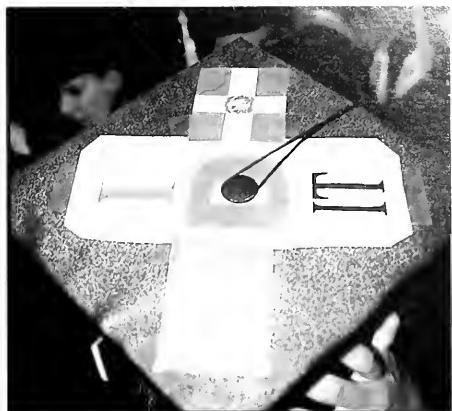

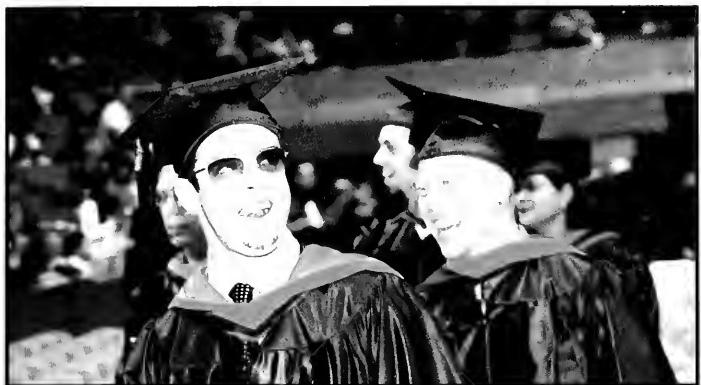

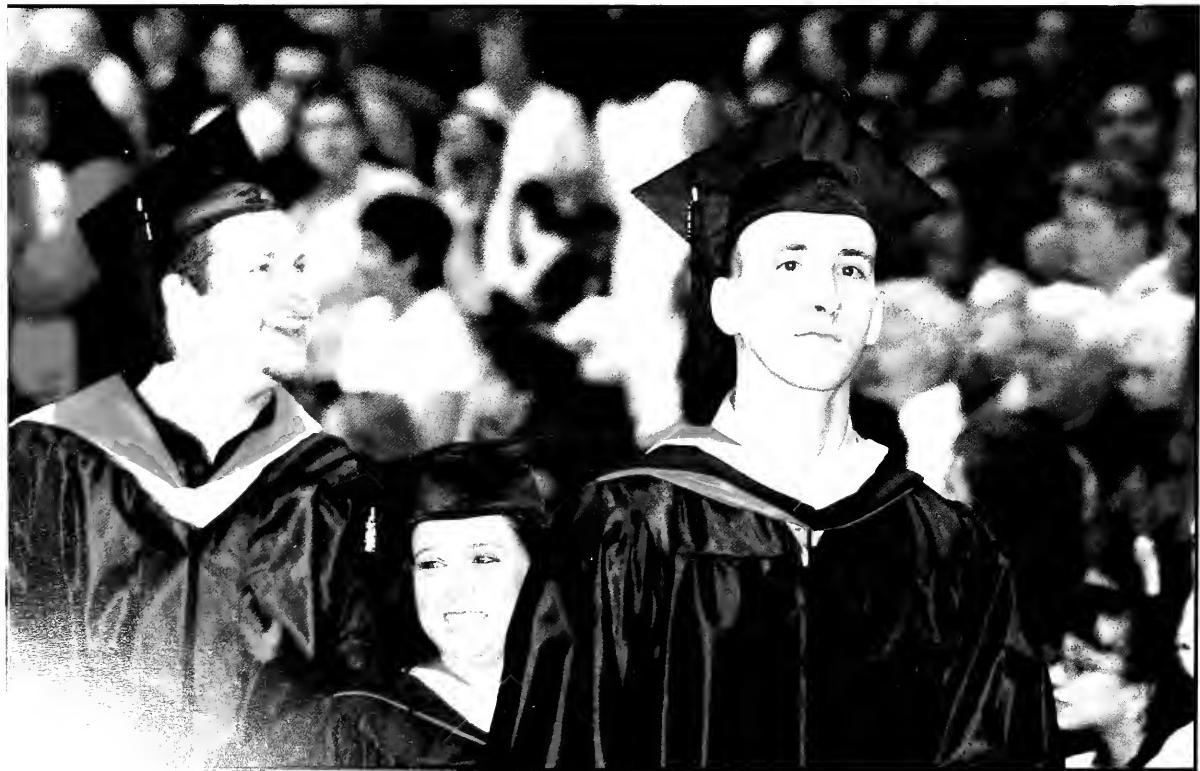

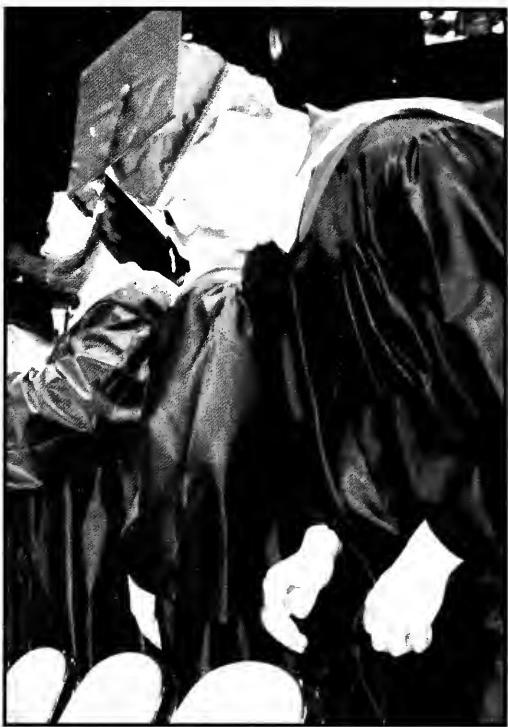

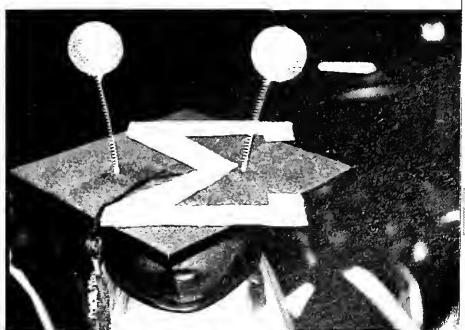

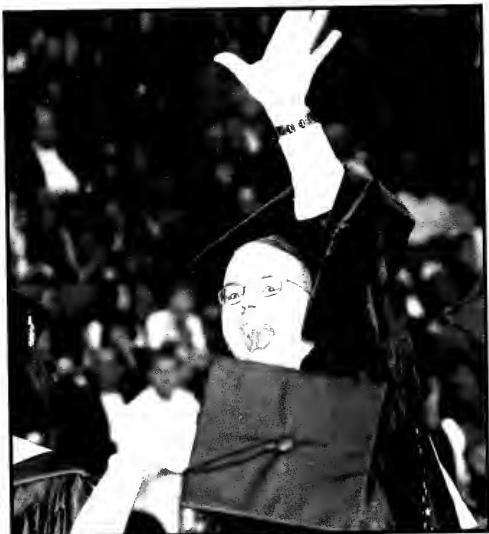

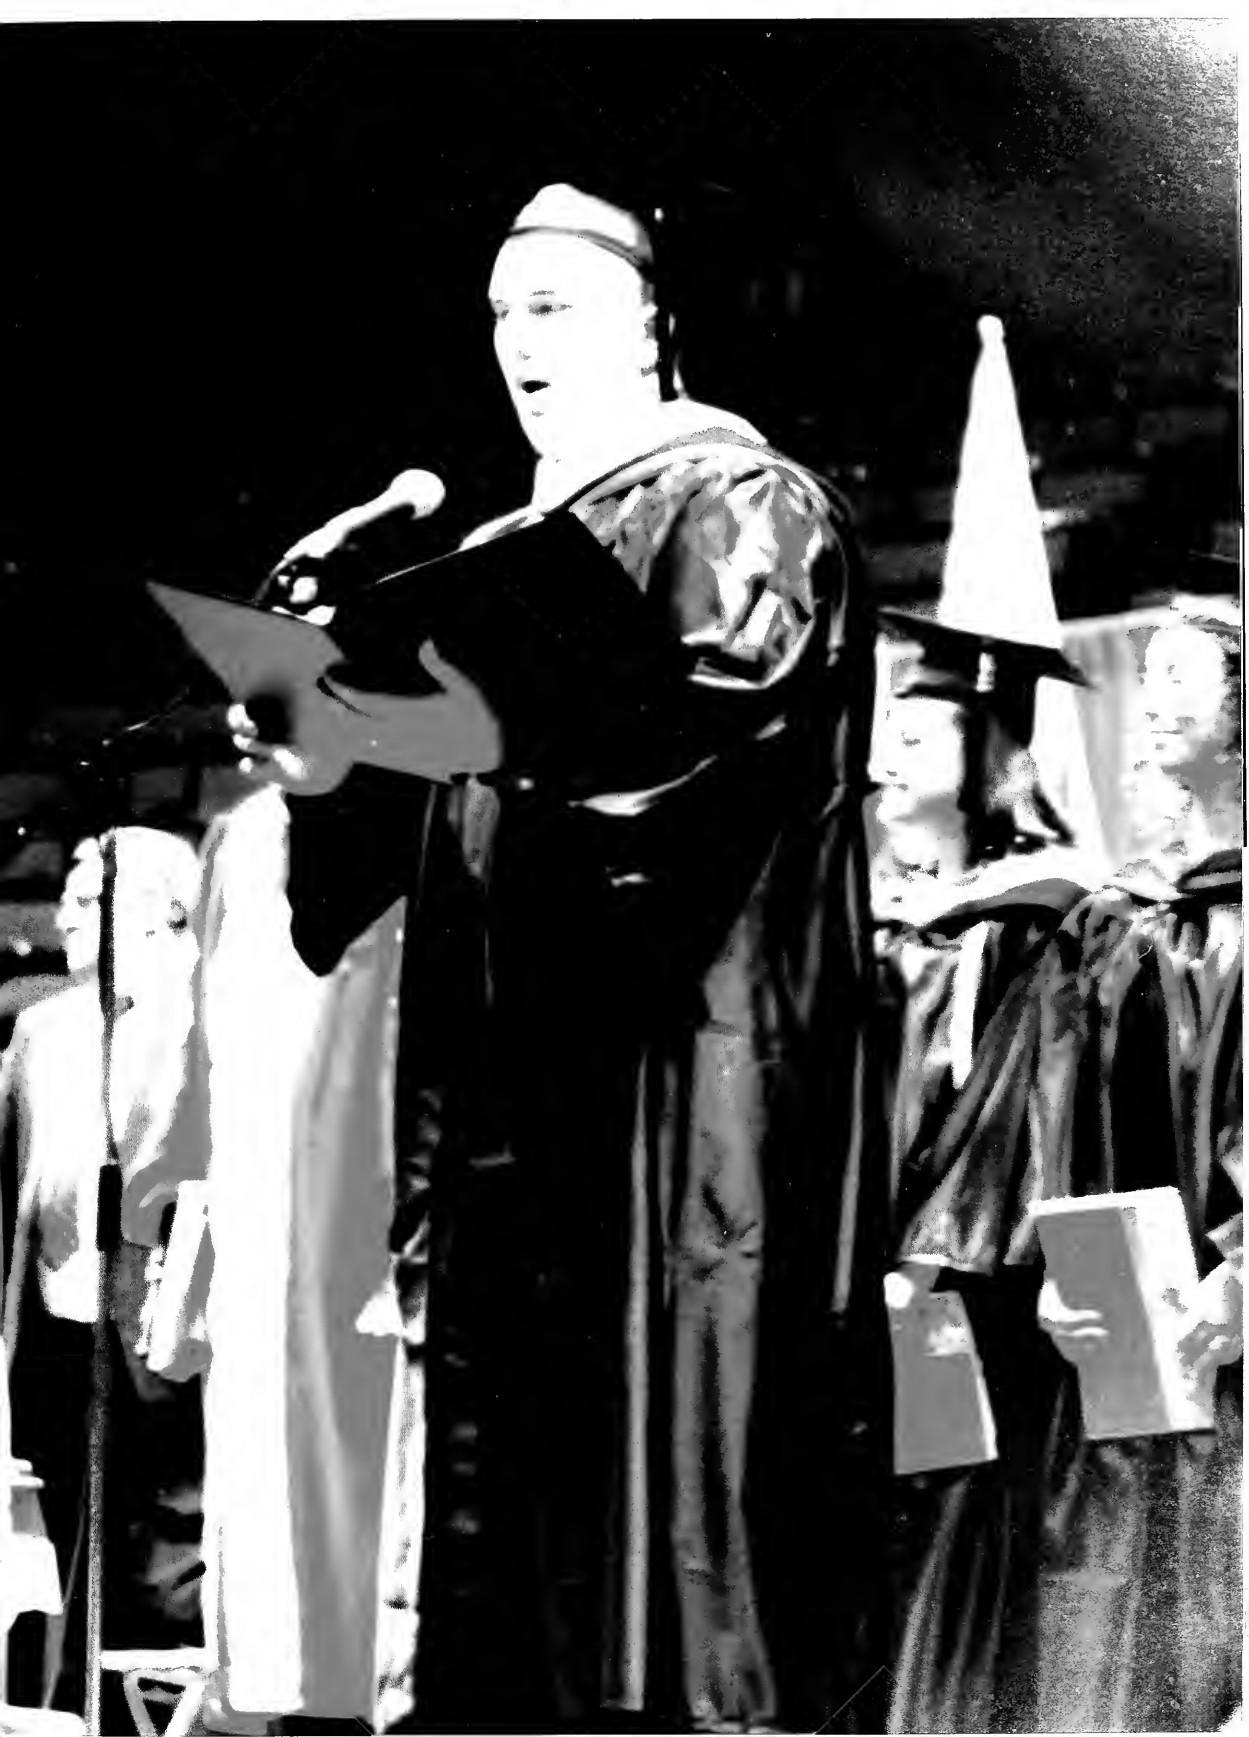

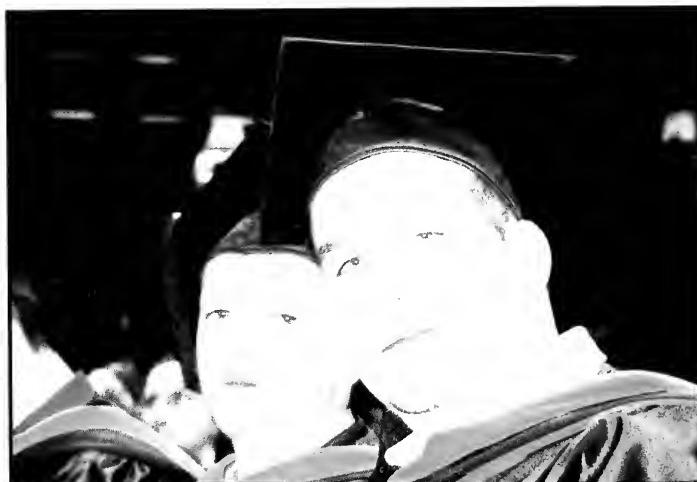

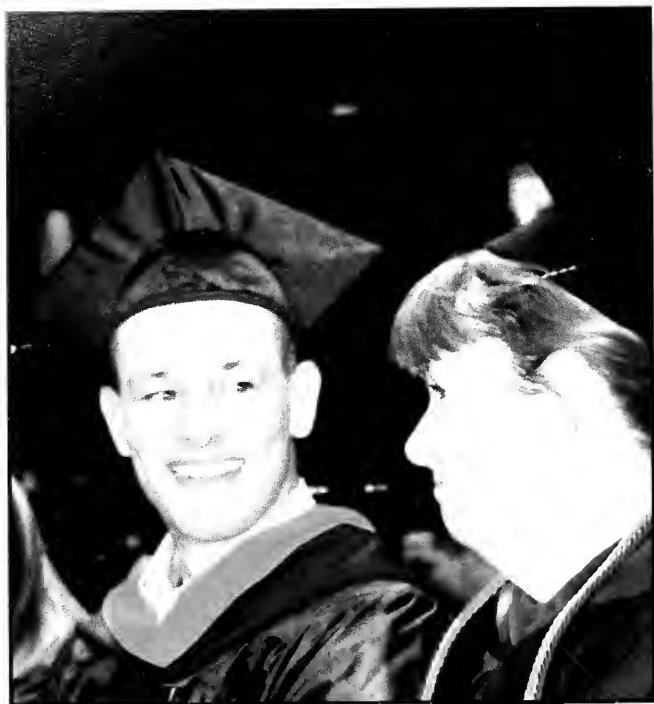

Class of 2002

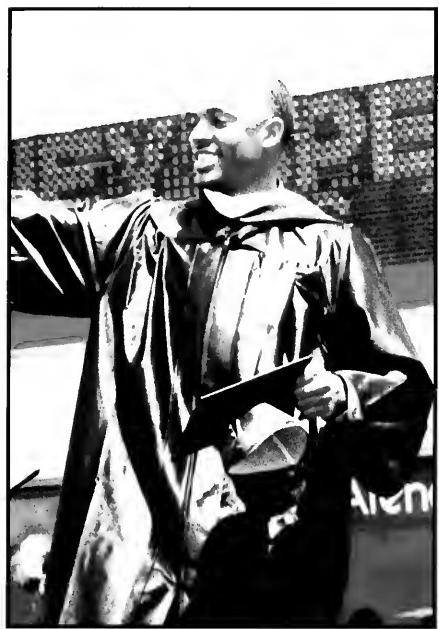

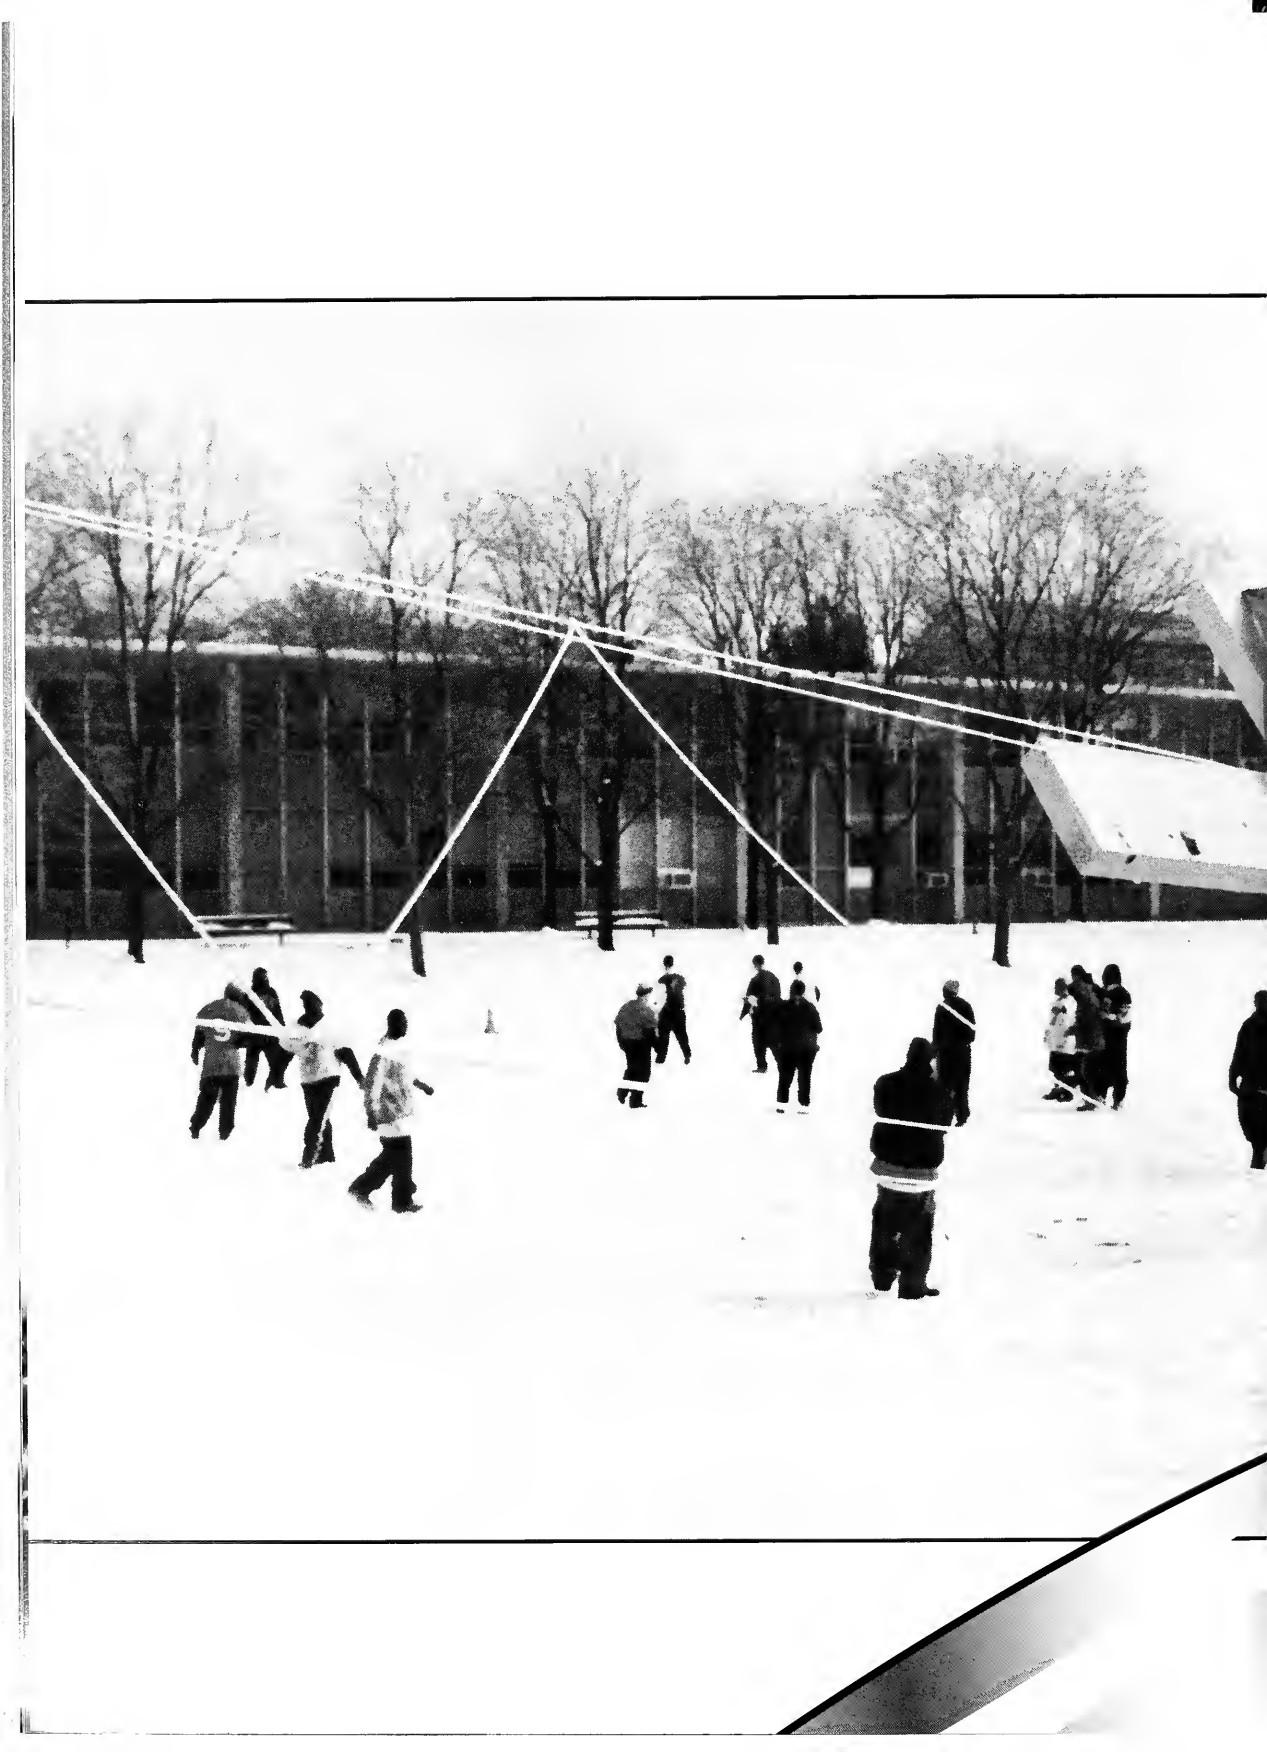

On behalf of the staff of La Campana I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the graduates of the Class of 2002. Through tragedy and triumph we've made it! May you have the best of luck in all your future endeavors.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who dedicated their time and energy to the completion of this book. To the La Campana Staff we've been through a lot together. As I look back on my years at M&S U so many of my memories are somehow linked to this organization. Liz & Nicole, you've both become two of my closest friends through these years. I'm so glad you were a part of this organization. You both helped keep me going when the going got rough. Thanks, Jay - you've proved you've got what it takes to run this organization. You were there to back me up when I didn't always have the time to put my all into it. I'm glad the book is being left in such good hands. I hope that as the years go on and we go our own ways that we don't lose touch, and that we will always remember the times we've had during these past years. You will all stay in my mind and heart forever.

Always remember, the hills ahead are never as steep as they seem
So with faith in your heart, start upward and climb till you reach your dream...
For faith is a mover of mountains -
there's nothing you cannot achieve
If you have the courage to try it and then have the faith to believe.

The World Trade Center

World Trade Center Facts

Architect:

Minoru Yamasaki Associates
of Rochester Hills, and Emery
Roth & Sons of NY.

Location:

New York City, NY.

Cost:

$1.29 billion

Height:

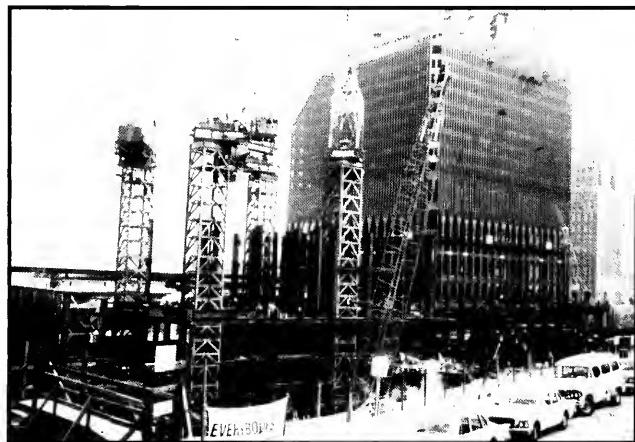

At 110 stories, 1353 feet, the two towers were the tallest in New York City, and the 5th tallest in the world.

Design:

The World Trade Center had been more than the twin towers. It was a complex of seven buildings on 16 acres, constructed and operated by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

"I feel this way about it. World Trade means world peace and consequently the World Trade Center buildings in New York . . . had a bigger purpose than just to provide room for tenants. The World Trade Center is a living symbol of man's dedication to world peace . . . beyond the compelling need to make this a monument to world peace, the World Trade Center should, because of its importance, become a representation of man's belief in humanity, his need for individual dignity, his beliefs in the cooperation of men, and through cooperation, his ability to find greatness." - Minoru Yamasaki, Architect Construction of a world trade facility had been under consideration since the end of WWII. In the late 1950's the Port Authority took interest in the project and in 1962 fixed its site on the west side of Lower Manhattan. The Port Authority envisioned a project with a total of 10 million square feet of office space. Designed to be very tall to maximize the area of the plaza, the towers were initially to rise only 80 - 90 stories. Only later was it decided to construct them as the world's tallest buildings.

Faced with the difficulties of building to unprecedented heights, the engineers employed an innovative structural model: a rigid "hollow tube" of closely spaced steel columns with floor trusses extending across to a central core. The columns, finished with a silver-colored aluminum alloy, were 18 3/4" wide and set only 22" apart, making the towers appear from afar to have no windows at all. Also unique to the design were its core and elevator system. The twin towers were the first supertall buildings designed without any masonry.

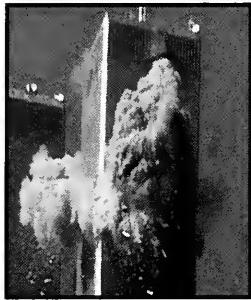

Chronology:

- January 1964 - The World Trade Center's architectural plan is unveiled.
- August 5, 1966 - Excavation starts.
- August 1968 - Steel construction begins.
- April 4, 1973 - The World Trade Center is dedicated.
- February 26, 1993 - Terrorist bomb explodes in the parking garage.
- September 11, 2001 - Two planes crash into the towers, which eventually collapse a short time later. All seven buildings of the World Trade Center complex are destroyed.

Montclair State University Reacts

"A Scene in A Movie I Wish I'd Never Seen" By Michele Phipany

Instead of fast-forwarding through realistic computer graphics of the World Trade Center crashing down, I stood there and watched it happen from a window in Chapin Hall overlooking what used to be the New York City skyline. There was a sudden rude awakening in that classroom.

Tears streamed down our faces as we realized almost unanimously that there was no rewind button that would be able to put the World Trade Center back together again. This wasn't a movie. All that could be seen rose up in mushroom clouds from the Manhattan grounds where the North and South towers used to stand, covering the city in a gray smog that screamed terrorism.

People were running all around me to see the view from high places at MSU. Others rushed into classrooms with televisions that broadcasted live footage of the two hijacked planes that crashed into the towers, sending a shock across the Hudson and throughout the campus.

By now everyone was talking about it. As I walked solemnly across campus towards the MSU Child Care Center where I worked, I heard overwhelming disbelief from people that I passed. Everyone had their own way of dealing with it; mine was one of solitude - wearing a long face and glassy eyes. I felt my heart racing in sheer terror, go out to those in the city, especially to those I knew personally.

I felt like crying. It was all too overwhelming, but somehow I managed to put on a happy face for the children, wishing at that moment that I was a young naive child who didn't understand how horrid the world could sometimes be. At naptime, tears once more consumed my eyes and I had to leave early to cope with the crisis. I met with some friends who comforted me, and was filled with relief after hearing from people I hoped had never made it into the city.

While we continue to search for the truth about what happened and why it happened, I find myself questioning the reality I have grown to know. This is something I used to only find in history books or war pictures - not in real life. It's frightening just to know how real this reality is. And now as one small part of the nation, at a university called Montclair State where I used to have a window in Bohn Hall overlooking the once-beautiful New York skyline, I wait in angst for politics to give me my happy ending.

"MSU Reacts" by Simona Kogan

Students stood around campus in tight knit circles, talking in low voices and crying. Other students walked listlessly to their next destination, with head down, feet shuffling forward, processing the information. Students gathered around the television in the Student Center cafeteria watching as smoke billowed around the dilapidated building. Cell phones were passed around without any fear of being stolen; students benevolently sharing their own possessions so that other students could get in touch with loved ones. Others were quietly praying in the SC Quad, searching for the answer to the millions of questions spinning around in their heads. Students watched from their residence hall windows in Bohn Hall and the rooftops of Richardson Hall, as 20 minutes away, landmarks were being destroyed. How does one come to grips with such a staggering event? Emotions welled up inside: anger, sadness, shock, confusion, and disbelief. The MSU community - all students, faculty and staff shared these feelings. All were visibly shaking their heads and trying to make sense of it all. Who would have ever thought that in the year 2001, students would be able to witness something so inconceivable that 20 years later they will be telling their children where they were when it happened?

A Message from President Cole

Tuesday, September 11th was a dreadful and terrifying day. Here, at the University, the sun was shining and students were going to classes, when suddenly, a few short miles away, the morning was shattered with explosions and massive death and injury. Cut off by the river, we all watched and listened, helpless to do anything, as one explosion after another brought the World Trade Centers down.

Some people in our community were directly and very painfully affected by this tragedy, and all of us grieve for them and for all the victims of these events. In the aftermath, the question uppermost in our minds is what we should do, as individuals and as a University community, to respond. I would suggest that there are at least three ways that we can help.

First, we must do all we can to help and support those who have been directly touched by this tragedy.

Second, we can do some practical things to help. For example, we can give blood, or we can provide housing, food, and transportation to community members who have temporarily been cut off from access to their homes.

The third thing we can do is far more difficult. We can go about our task of educating ourselves and preparing ourselves to shape a world in which such things do not happen. The tragic acts our country experienced on Tuesday were the product of profound hate and ignorance. When people do not know each other or understand each other, a fertile ground exists for the breeding of hatred. The only effective antidote to hate is knowledge, understanding, and a commitment to a common humanity.

To see the flames of destruction, the blood and torn flesh is horrible beyond comprehension. But to see children dancing joyfully in the streets in the face of such tragedy, is, in some ways, worse. The children's joy in the death of those they perceive as their enemies is the very seed that will grow into the next tragedy of destruction. So our obligation, even in the midst of our grief and our anger, is not to follow the pathways of hate. Our obligation is to challenge ourselves to really understand the implications and meaning of the events we witnessed on September 11th. Our obligation, as citizens, is to understand and influence as best we can the actions that our government will take in response to these events.

Clearly, the events of Tuesday, September 11th will be with us for a long time to come. I would encourage all members of the University to think of ways in which, as an educational community, we can best respond.

President George W. Bush Responds

Our fellow citizens, our way of life, our very freedom came under attack in a series of deliberate and deadly terrorist acts. The victims were in airplanes or in their offices—secretaries, businessmen and women, military and federal workers. Moms and dads. Friends and neighbors. Thousands of lives were suddenly ended by evil, despicable acts of terror.

These acts of mass murder were intended to frighten our nation into chaos and retreat. But they have failed. Our country is strong. A great people has been moved to defend a great nation.

Terrorist attacks can shake the foundations of our biggest buildings but they cannot touch the foundation of America. These acts can shatter steel, but they cannot dent the steel of American resolve.

America was targeted for attack because we're the brightest beacon for freedom and opportunity in the world. And no one can keep that light from shining.

Our nation saw evil, the worst of human nature, and we responded with the best of America, with the daring of our rescue workers with the caring of strangers and neighbors who came to give blood and help in any way they could.

Immediately following the first attack, I implemented our government's emergency response plans. Our military is powerful, and it's prepared.

America and our friends and allies join with all those who want peace and security in the world and we stand together to win the war against terrorism.

I ask for your prayers for all those who grieve, for the children whose worlds have been shattered, for all whose sense of safety and security has been threatened. And I pray they will be comforted by a power greater than any of us spoken through the ages in Psalm 23: "Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I fear no evil, for You are with me."

This is a day when all Americans from every walk of life unite in our resolve for justice and peace. America has stood down enemies before, and we will do so this time.

None of us will ever forget this day, yet we go forward to defend freedom and all that is good and just in our world.

Pulling Together and Moving On

There is nothing I can say about the tragedy itself that has not already been said by the many media organizations covering the event and by everyone who finds themselves reading this right now. Words like tragic, unbelievable and horrendous do not come close to conveying the situation. All words seem shallow and impotent at this point.

What can be said are a few words regarding how MSU as an institution handled its responsibility to the 13,000 students that attend this school and numerous faculty and staff that run it.

It is with great pride as a part of MSU that I find few faults with how MSU has conducted itself in reacting to the tragic events. With grace and compassion, support structures were immediately put into place to assist members of the campus community who needed to get in touch with family and loved ones off campus, or who felt too greatly the burden of this situation and simply needed someone to talk to.

With wisdom, President Cole left the campus open and functional, as much a symbol of our undaunted courage in the face of disaster as it is a practical and prudent decision; 1,500 residents still needed a place to sleep and eat and countless others undoubtedly needed the support structure of this institution in place of family that was not right at hand.

It is by fighting against ignorance and unreason that we will eventually find ourselves in a world where we need not worry about planes flying into buildings on purpose.

To close down, to shut the doors of MSU, would be to let the terrorists win, because they will then have achieved their goal. They will have deprived us of our ability to learn and better ourselves, and by doing so deprived us of our ability to fight back. I encourage everyone to push through this, to fight against these acts of violence by continuing their daily struggle to learn.

"The University is a bulwark against ignorance and unreason."
-Susan A. Cole, President

"This is incredible. It's totally unexpected but it's also a time when we need to share what we have in common and to support each other."

-Associate Dean, James Harris

"I'm really impressed by everybody's willingness to pitch in. People are putting up signs and students are sharing phones."

What Students Are Saying

Topic 1: Parking

Are MSU students having trouble finding a spot?

Are students parking too far from home?

Topic 2: Shuttle Buses

How long are MSU students waiting in the rain and cold?

Are the drivers rude?

Topic 3: Campus Safety

Do students feel safe on campus at night?

Is campus security consistently doing a good job?

Topic 4: School Spirit

Do MSU students have it?

How can more be built up?

Topic 5: Academic Excellence

Are MSU courses too difficult?

Do professors meet the needs of the students?

Topic 6: Sodexho/Red Hawk Diner

How upset are students with Sodexho?

How has the campus reacted to the Red Hawk Diner?

Topic 7: Residence Life

How do students feel about the conditions of the dorms?

Is Residence Life doing a sufficient job in keeping up with the residential needs of the students?

Most students at Montclair State University always have something to say about everything that is happening on campus, whether it's about their classes, the financial aid office, the prices in the bookstore, or the food in the cafeteria. Students at MSU have their own opinions, and will make sure that they are heard.

When walking through the Student Center quad or dining in Blanton Cafeteria, one or more of the following comments are usually heard:

"I waited almost an hour last night for the bus!"

"Something has to be done about the parking situation!"

"There's nothing to do here on weekends!"

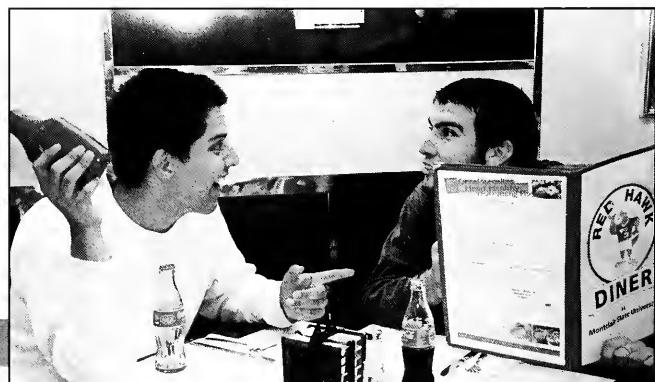

"My professor never has time for me!"

"I can't believe the hot water is out again!"

"This campus is so dark at night!"

"I'm so sick of this food!"

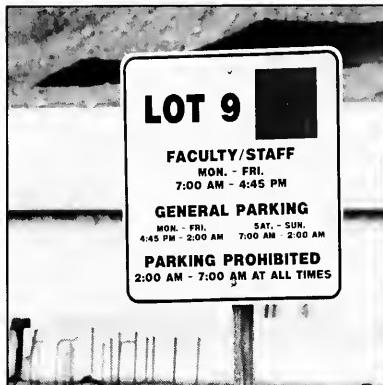

Although it seems as if the complaints and concerns that students seem to have are endless, many of them revolve around the same issues.

Parking

How many times has this happened to you? It's the middle of the night (or early in the morning, depending on what type of person you are) and you are driving back to school after work or a party. You are so insanely tired that you can't think straight, and as soon as you reach the campus you remember where you have to park.

Lot 28! Yes, Lot 28, the vast wasteland of a parking lot far from the reaches of Montclair civilization. Lot 28, the land that God and Time forgot, judging by the potholes which put the lunar surface to shame. The general consensus about the parking situation here at MSU is not very favorable according to the response gathered from a questionnaire put out by the Student Government Association. The issue of Lot 28, although a large concern, is only part of the larger picture. One common complaint is the lack of parking spaces. An average commuter has to arrive to campus unreasonably early prior to their class just to search for a spot remotely close to the building, which often times is never found. Residents also feel the effects of minimal parking as they are leaving their cars in another zip code down in Lot 28. Although construction is underway for a new parking garage, students wonder if this will ease the problem any, and with the push from the administration for an increase in the student population, many question where these new students will have to park while on campus.

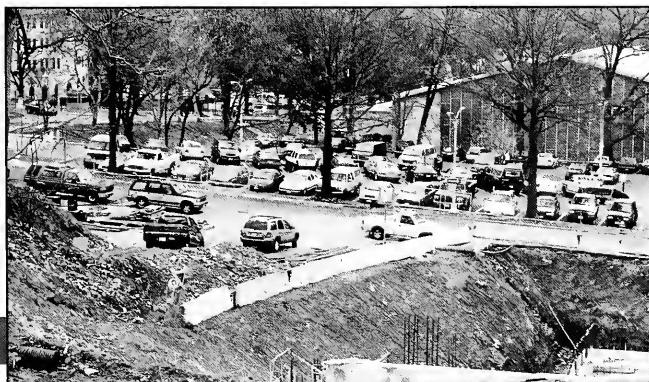

Although commuters and residents are often separated based upon their living circumstances, they have come together to raise complaints and concerns about parking. However, if a lot were to be constructed for only one of the two groups, which side could make the best argument as to being given the lot?

Commuters say: We have to get up early and battle traffic at different hours of the day, whereas residents only have to walk five minutes from where they live to get to class, so we should be able to have sufficient parking.

Residents say: Our residence hall is our home, and thus we should be able to park fairly close to our place of residence just as commuters do when they are at home. One shouldn't have to catch a bus to one's car just to go grab a bite to eat at McDonald's or go food shopping.

Residents and commuters may be at odds with each other over certain issues, but when it comes to parking, they have surely come to an agreement that the parking situation is in dire need of renovation.

Shuttle Buses

As you pull into Lot 28, you notice the shuttle bus parked at the bus stop, and as you try to figure out if it just got there, it pulls away and unfortunately your question is answered. The sense of neverending hopelessness overwhelms you as you seat yourself inside the bus stop. Although shielded from the downpour, you shiver from the bitter cold. You glance at the posted shuttle bus schedule, roll your eyes, and begin the wait. After twenty minutes the guard in the booth dozes off, and you begin to wonder if maybe the bus driver has done the same thing somewhere between Freeman Hall and the quarry.

Just as you consider cutting across the tracks and up the hill to your bed in Blanton, you see the bus creeping slowly through the quarry and silently curse the driver for taking his time. Yet, as you climb the steps onto the bus, and notice how tired the driver is, you can't help but think that he's doing his job the best he can.

Once seated on the bus, you begin to feel some relief knowing that soon you'll be back at your dorm, until you realize that the bus is not moving; the driver is waiting for some reason. Soon he figures out that nobody else is coming and slowly lurches the bus forward. You don't have to worry about dozing off as the bus clangs and shakes on its journey back to campus, and as you climb off the bus at your stop, you can't remember if you turned the interior lights off in your car.

Every student knows the sound of the MSU shuttle buses; after experiencing the long waits, most ears have been trained to recognize the whining, clanging sound of the bus as it finally arrives. All too frequently a student will hear it when he or she is just far enough away that making a run for it would be useless. As for their appearance, it's easy to spot the shuttles by the chipping paint and faded colors.

In an effort to spread awareness of events on campus, placards have begun showing up on the sides of the shuttles, promoting events such as MSU Squares for Spring Week, as well as other on-campus programs.

However, many students fail to read these placards because by the time the bus arrives, most are so irritated from waiting that they immediately climb on and take a seat. In a study taken in February, it was concluded that most of the buses were always 10-15 minutes late, with some up to a half hour behind schedule. The Physical Plant states that much of the problem with the timeliness of the shuttles is due in part to the traffic flow and construction on campus, although many students disagree. Buses are often late in the early morning hours, when traffic should not be a factor.

Although most students complain about the inefficiency of the shuttle buses, many do not realize that other universities have no shuttles. What's more is that many of these universities are larger, and thus students there are forced to walk even farther. So the next time you see the bus coming slowly down Clove Road or turning off of Valley Road after waiting for twenty minutes, just be thankful that it's coming at all.

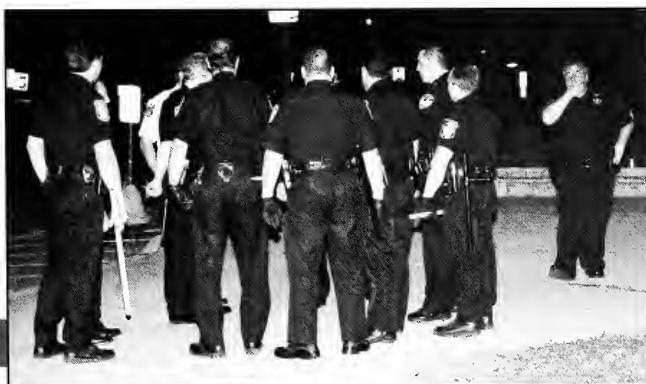

Campus Safety

Although crime isn't a serious problem on campus, there have been incidents and circumstances that have students questioning their safety at Montclair State University. At the beginning of the academic year, campus officers were issued guns to carry on them, authorized by President Cole and the Board of Trustees. Are these guns a sign that campus police are more concerned about our safety, or a result of increased crime of which the students have not been made aware? The decision on whether or not to arm campus police had been highly debated on for over a year, and was decided upon based on the fact that MSU is a community of over 15,000 individuals located in a major metropolitan area, according to Dr. Karen Pennington. Chief Paul Cell commented in an interview with the Montclarion that the officers will only use the guns if lethal force is necessary, and that they will not use their weapons to threaten or intimidate. Students' reactions to the issue have come from both sides. While some feel that equipping officers with guns will help suppress crime, many feel uneasy about increasing the number of guns on campus. Regardless, since the officers have had the proper training, the students can feel safe in their residence halls knowing they are now well protected, unless of course someone walks right past the desk assistant who is either not swiping cards or deeply involved in his/her homework, but there's only so much you can do to ensure campus security.

Walking across campus at night, most students feel fairly safe, despite the fact that many places across campus are poorly lit. Reviewing the crime logs obtained by campus police, there have been few incidents on campus at night. However, it seems as if the students should be more concerned about their vehicles than themselves, since one problem that has increased throughout this year has been automobile safety, with an increase in car theft. In October of 2001, Chief of Police, Paul Cell, reported that 22 cars had been reported missing since January, which was a dramatic increase from the total of nine reported in the Annual Security Report for 2000. As a result, security was increased by the police department, which was obvious by the various check points that were set up across campus where cars were stopped and checked for ignition tampering or any other sign of theft. Additionally, at these stops officers also checked to make sure that students were buckled up. Vehicles were reported stolen from all lots except for those with gates, so although the gates are a nuisance when trying to find a good parking spot, they are helpful in preventing car theft. Prior to this year, campus police were responsible for both security and parking. Now that Standard Parking is responsible for parking violations, campus police can now focus more on campus security.

School Spirit

It's a Friday afternoon, classes are over and students are ready to have some fun, so naturally like any college student, you start asking around to find out what's going on around campus, right? Well, if this were any other university, yes, but here, the average student packs a weekend bag, waits for the shuttle, hops in his/her car and drives home. Students go home on the weekends because there's nothing going on, but there's nothing going on because students go home for the weekends. Thus, here lies the problem; where does the vicious circle break? Either the mindset of the students or the event planners, or both, must change. Students should join an organization and make things happen instead of sitting around waiting for something. Plan the events you want to see on campus and make them happen. Many students at MSU do not have any pride for their university; maybe they need to be given something to be proud of. They may not be happy with their academics, but that doesn't mean they should drive away from a boring university on Friday afternoon. The Administration wants the students to stay around on the weekends, so they should work with them. Plan more events and keep more things open.

Whoever started the idea that a college has to shut down on the weekends just because there are no classes? For many students, this is where they live; their lives don't shut down on the weekends, so neither should their homes. Have pride in your school, and make the best of it, because your time here is short.

Give me an M!

Give me an S!
tumbleweed rolls past
Give me a U!
a pin drops

Thus, with an all too familiar awkward silence from the stands, the MSU Cheerleaders cartwheeled and backflipped their way out of the stadium for the last time, taking with them the most school spirit that any group of students have ever shown.

Nobody seems to know where the lack of school spirit at MSU stems from, but it is blatant at almost every sporting event. With the exception of Homecoming, which serves as the culmination of a year's worth of school spirit, the stands at most games are practically empty. The cheerleaders, which at least filled the stands with the more "energetic" young male freshmen, have, for some reason, been eliminated. At least there is our trusty, never-fail, mascot, Rocky the Redhawk, whose name was recently chosen by a vote in which less than 5% of the campus participated, and who bi-yearly wanders around campus waving at unresponsive students.

Then there is the ever present paradox: Are events considered lame because nobody attends them, or does nobody attend them because they are considered lame? For years, the attempts at gradually trying to trickle student participation and school spirit back into the university have failed, so where is the answer? How does one breathe some life back into this spiritless campus?

The SGA's Director of Campus Recreation and Athletic Affairs, Steve Fusco, and his respective committee have come out with some great plans, including frequent pep rallies. Additionally, Campus Recreation made a good showing this year with intramural sports, such as softball and water polo. Will these efforts be enough to get the ball rolling toward a more exciting campus, or will Rocky fade away as quietly as the cheerleaders?

Academic Excellence

Carpe Diem

The road to a college education is a long and arduous one; choosing the right school can be a very difficult task. Over 13,000 Students each year finally select Montclair State University as their next step on the educational ladder. By mid-October, there develop mixed opinions among the student population about the academics at MSU. With a broad range of available majors, from the arts and sciences to business, it cannot be said that this university is limited in what it offers. However, the quality of academics is often a subject of lunchtime chatter. Between unavailable courses to inconsiderate professors, it seems as if some students are never happy with the education they are receiving. Whether these students are truly concerned or just merely lazy may never be known, but considering that most class sizes are under thirty, and teachers are often eager to assist students, it is more often the latter than the former.

With continuous outside distractions, such as parties, adventures to the city, and trips to the diner, one finds it hard to stay in the room with his head in the books. Even in the room, one can easily become preoccupied with instant messaging, MP3's and anything else that isn't school work. Balancing academics and sanity becomes a chore in itself, but those who are successful do well in school and still enjoy themselves.

So the first semester of your college experience is nearly over and you're already fantasizing about winter break. For the past three and a half months you've been slaving over homework, projects, quizzes, reports and tests. After hours of cramming and endless amounts of coffee, you've almost made it . . . at least for this semester anyway. Three and a half more years to go . . . at least. A well deserved break is truly in order, and you can almost picture yourself skiing down the slopes of Vermont . . . but wait . . . a monster rears its head and snaps you back to reality: finals. Ah, the time when you are expected to pull from your cloudy mind a semester's worth of information for not one, but five classes. Somehow you find it hard to discern what facts go on what tests as you slowly crawl your way through finals

It was always hard to imagine the end of college, receiving that rolled up paper with your name on it, and tossing your cap. But that's come and gone and it hits you suddenly as you stand in the parking lot watching endless graduates pouring out of the stadium: "Where am I going once I climb into this car?" Force of habit would take you back to your dorm so you could study for your Biology test on Monday, but that phase is over. You buckle your seatbelt and start your car anyway; gotta keep moving.

Sodexho/Red Hawk Diner

Diner Protest: Let Us Swipe!

When the Student Center Cafe was stripped of its dinner hours in what seemed to be an effort to force students to eat at the diner, where meal plans are not accepted, many students raised arms in protest and confronted Sodexho.

Sodexho: Many commuter students complain that there is no place for them to eat.
Rebuttal: Commuters can eat anywhere residents can, and both dining halls are open to those who do not have a meal plan.

Sodexho: Commuters may not feel comfortable with sororities and fraternities in the Student Center.
Rebuttal: Residents, as well as commuters alike, have to associate with Greeks as well.

Sodexho: The Ratt is open for dinner and you can use your meal plan there.
Rebuttal: The Ratt basically offers fried foods and does not offer fresh sandwiches, and although Elanton does, they do not allow food to be taken out, which does not help students who are on a time constraint.

In the end, most students have refused to eat at the diner, where they have to pay for the same foods they can swipe for elsewhere. Needless to say, Six Brothers Diner, where the food is considered not only more appealing, but cheaper as well, still does good business.

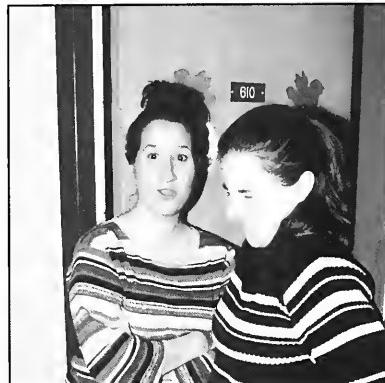

Eat, drink, and be merry! Well, if you dine on campus you may not feel too merry afterwards. Once you finish your meal it's hard to tell if you're full or disgusted. In all seriousness, the food selection at MSU is not horrible; given the stories you hear about college food prior to actually getting there your expectations aren't too high to begin with.

Sodexho is the sole provider of food to the dining facilities on the campus, from the cafeterias, to the Red Hawk truck, to the C-Store, to the newly constructed Red Hawk Diner. In fact, the diner was an incentive for the decision makers to sign a lengthy contract with Sodexho, which continues our partnership with them for over eight more years. As part of the deal, Sodexho paid for three-fourths of the cost of the new diner. Whether or not the diner was worth continuing a partnership with a business that provides the campus with food that most students consider to be inadequate is debatable, but regardless, the students have no choice but to take what they are given. Furthermore, the meal plan system has left many students feeling cheated. Before the beginning of the semester, students pay for a certain number of meal swipes, where each swipe is equivalent to $3.60. At the end of the semester, any meals that are left unused are lost, as is the money that paid for them. On average, many students have 50 meals left over in the end, which is $180 that could easily be refunded. Instead, students find themselves swiping ridiculous amounts of food in the final weeks of the semester. Despite the fact that most students find the idea of Sodexho hard to swallow, both figuratively and literally, it's something that they will have to deal with.

Residence Halls

They're not called "dorms", they are "residence halls", as any strict Residence Life member will assertively tell you. However, placing a more appealing title on a deteriorating building still doesn't change the fact that it is in need of repairs. As many students have discovered, the "residence halls" at MSU are not the greatest; most of them are several decades old, so problems are to be expected. From floods in Blanton to loss of heat and faulty fire alarms in Freeman, there are plenty. Thus, in what seems to be an answer to these issues, a new residence hall is currently under construction on Clove Road, although it is unclear as to whether or not this new building will lead to the elimination of any others. However, it looks as if the current residence halls, even Bohn, which is gradually sliding down the hill toward Valley Road, will remain standing, since the University has already pushed for an increase in student attendance. Current students felt the effect of the increase in the student population this year as many found themselves tripled in several of the residence halls. However, despite the problems, there always forms within these ancient buildings a sense of community and a family-like atmosphere that keeps one going when the work and stress pile high, or homesickness sets in. From the freshman, newly liberated from mom and dad, to seniors, itching to leave, everyone knows that through it all, these tiny rooms are home . . . for now.

If you live in . . .

Bohn - You can probably talk about how you felt when you saw from your room the atrocities of September 11th.

Blanton - You basically live in a prison-like building, often guessing at what the weather is like outside, but can brag about the air-conditioning, carpeting and cafeteria.

Webster - You are a woman.

Stone - You live with some of the most down-to-earth people on campus, the bohemian society.

Freeman - You probably love the suite style setup, but fear another loss of heat come winter.

Russ - You got lucky, since you are in one of the oldest buildings with newest accoutrements.

Clove - You are even luckier, although you often wonder where those weird noises are coming from.

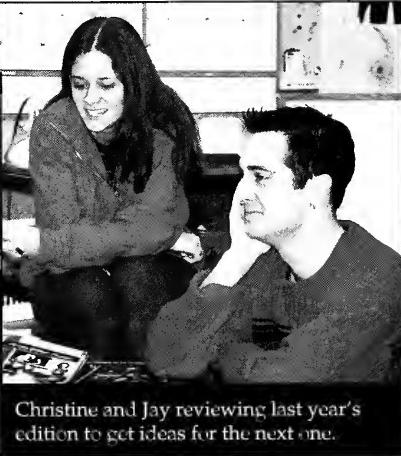

La Campana

Being in an organization that is responsible for producing a publication that covers every aspect of a student's college experience can, at times, seem overwhelming. Except for those people who have devoted their time to produce this book, few people realize what it takes to bring this project to completion. More than pointing a camera and pushing a button, producing this book is a chore in itself and those who have put in the hours in addition to maintaining their academics are well appreciated. This book has come together through hard work and devotion, but not without struggles and mistakes, laughs and smiles. In the end, this book is in itself a reward; knowing that in this book are memories that will be cherished forever and that we are responsible for its existence is a treasure we can walk away with.

Last year the Collegiate Associated Press Conference was in Washington, D.C., and we thought it could not be any better than that. Then again, we had never been on Bourbon Street, the most liberal street in the nation, at six in the morning, with Cajun food appesing our taste buds and Jazz music filling our ears. In a culture of freedom in all respects, we were completely enveloped in the nature of the French Quarter. In observing the instant celebrations in the streets, it was hard to imagine that anyone in Louisiana slept, let alone maintained a job. Thus, seeing as how we had become quickly adapt to the lifestyle, we found it difficult to pull ourselves out of bed in the morning to attend the work sessions. However, we did, and it was there that we learned from students all over the nation, and from their publications, valuable information and new perspectives that would help us in our own publication. The outcome is what you now hold in your hands.

Jostens Printing and Publishing Division, which is located in State College, Pennsylvania, printed the 2002 edition of La Campana, the yearbook of Montclair State University. Jerry Salomone was our representative from Jostens Publishing. The 2002 edition contains 280 pages, 62 of which are in full color, designed using Jostens Yeartech desktop publishing program and Adobe Pagemaker 6.0.

Rick Brooks, in conjunction with Jerry Salomone, Christine Gilliland, Jason Long, Nicole Patterson, and Lizbeth Victorero designed the internal artwork. The senior portraits are provided courtesy of Lors Photography. Jim Carroll was our representative from Lors Photography.

All photographs appearing in this book were taken by Lors Photography, Chris Dionaldo, Christine Gilliland, Jason Long, Sheria McCoy, Stephanie Olsen, Nicole Patterson, Annette Patti, Erin Rice, Lizbeth Victorero, Karyn Vongsouthy, or the organization pictured.

Special thanks to the Montclarion for providing pictures and information. Special thanks also to Jenn Winski for her contribution of many pictures. La Campana would like to thank the organizations for taking their own pictures. La Campana is a service of the Student Government Association, Incorporated of Montclair State University, and was fully funded by the S.G.A., Inc.
